Your search can be limited by ticking the box next to the collection in the Table of Content.

In your search result the following will appear next to the cases.

Once you selected the relevant case, to the right of the screen related content will appear.
The Trade Marks (International Registration) Order 1996

This Order gives effect in the United Kingdom to the Protocol relating to the Madrid Agreement concerning the International Registration of Marks adopted at Madrid on 27th June 1891 ('the Madrid Protocol') which the United Kingdom ratified on 8th April 1995. The arrangements made under the Madrid Protocol become effective on the 1st April 1996 and the Order comes into force on that date.

The Trade Marks (International Registrations Designating the European Community, etc.) Regulations 2004

The Trade Marks (International Registration) Order 2008

This Order modernises and replaces The Trade Marks (International Registration) Order 1996 (S.I. 1996 No 714 as amended) (‘the Order’). The Order is made under powers conferred by section 54 of the Trade Mark Act 1994 (‘TMA’) and gives effect in the UK to the provisions of the Madrid Protocol, which is the system by which trade marks can be registered internationally and subsequently protected in the holder’s choice of designated states or territories.

- Trade facilitation: an assessment of South African experiences vis-a-vis WTO disciplines

- In a related vein, the 2015 expert group highlighted new York investors in these South African trade facilitation networks, which would enable developing countries to reap trade benefits that the reduction in tariffs would provide. South Africa and the World Trade Organization (WTO) have been active in this area of international co-operation since 1995 for an understanding of trade facilitation in South Africa.

- Despite the efforts of South Africa to address trade facilitation through various initiatives, including the implementation of the WTO's Trade Facilitation Agreement, significant challenges remain, particularly in the area of border management and customs procedures. These challenges have been exacerbated by the complex and fragmented nature of the South African bureaucracy, which has led to inefficiencies and delays in the movement of goods across borders.

- The author evaluates the provisions of the new legislation and assesses whether South Africa is now equipped with the tools to effectively implement the reforms required to improve trade facilitation and reduce trade costs.
